Frozen Foods Recalled for Broken Glass

Bits of broken glass found in frozen egg rolls, pizza twists and taco chalupas has prompted health officials to recall affected products that may have been sold in Idaho stores. The products were sold under the brand names of Pagoda, Tony's, Minh, Jade Mountain, Herb Classic Collections, Lotus Garden and Coyote Grill. They may have been distributed in Idaho stores including Albertsons, Fred Meyer, IGA, Broulim's and other independent grocers. No reports of injuries from consumers have been reported.

The recall includes approximately 354,000 pounds of frozen food distributed nationwide by Schwan's Food Company. The production dates of affected foods are November 8-10, 2004. The products bearing the brand names of Pagoda, Tony's and Minh will have one of the following date codes on the package: 38413, 38414 or 38415. The Herb Classic products will have the 'Use By' date of '03/09/05' printed on the package. Products that are delivered by Schwan's delivery trucks are not affected by this recall.

The distributor has notified stores that may have received the recalled products. Consumers who purchased affected products can return the frozen food to the store they bought it from for a refund. For more information, consumers can contact Schwan's Food Company at 1-800-551-5961. Media may contact Steve Lindstrom, Schwan's Corporate Relations, at 1-507-537-8700.
